Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Saturday 10 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Heavy showers in north, rain for a time in south.

Today:
Rain, heavy at times, across southern England moving east and clearing the southeast during afternoon. Elsewhere, sunny spells and heavy showers, mainly inland across north Wales and north Midlands northwards with a risk of thunderstorms.

Tonight:
Daytime showers fading leaving some clear spells. Some low cloud in the north. Risk of frontal rain into the southwest of England later.

Sunday:
Scattered, slow-moving showers developing through the morning. These becoming heavy for parts of Scotland and northern England by afternoon. Cloud and more persist showery rain moving across Wales and southwest.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Heavy, thundery showers for many on Monday, perhaps more persistent thundery rain across the south. Further heavy shower in places Tuesday, then tuning drier and warmer by Wednesday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.